Extreme Weather events impact service in Sydney Metropolitan, Greater Sydney, Hunter, Central Tablelands, Illawarra, and South Coast

As previously notified on 13 May 2013, normal operations in the Sydney Metropolitan, Greater Sydney, Hunter, Central Tablelands, Illawarra, and South Coast region of New South Wales were affected by a series of extreme weather events on or about Friday 19 April 2013 through to Saturday 20 April 2013. The telecommunications network in these areas have experienced high levels of damage that resulted in delays to installation and repair activities on a significant number of services. Due to the extent of damage to the network, the impact in the affected region has been greater than initially estimated, and as a consequence of the continued weather effects, the expected recovery date has now been extended to 21 June 2013.

We have identified that the effect of these circumstances applies to an additional 10,000 services bringing the total number of services impacted to approximately 37,500 services. This number may increase as we assess the full affect of the extreme weather conditions. Based on current information, the resumption date of normal service operations is expected to be 21 June 2013. This date is indicative only; customers should anticipate that some further delays may occur.
